MANAGING POLICE DISCIPLINE

Advanced Command Staff Training

A WORKSHOP ON CREATING AND MAINTAINING A 'WELL-DISCIPLINED' ORGANIZATION

The need to use a lot of punitive discipline suggests a poorly disciplined organization. In a "well-disciplined" organization, systems work properly and people do what they're supposed to do, including follow the rules.

This seminar explains a variety of enhanced leadership initiatives, including focused policy and strengthened systems, to achieve "disciplinary" goals.

INSTRUCTOR/FACILITATOR

RANDY MEANS, J.D.

Attorney with decades of experience working full-time in/with law enforcement leadership

Nationally recognized expert in police law, systems, leadership and accountability

Former military officer, second-in-command of a combatant naval vessel

This is macro-leadership training about the shaping of organizational culture through enhanced methods of human development and proper use of strengthened systems.

Leadership styles can and will vary from leader to leader but adherence to certain key principles cannot. Leaders must put employees on clear notice of organizational standards. Those standards must then be consistently enforced. Disciplinary sanctions must be consistent and proportionate. In certain key respects, supervision cannot vary from supervisor to supervisor; overarching consistency must be maintained from workgroup to workgroup. This requires a systemic approach to what historically was left to individual supervisory and managerial discretions. The program shows the need for organizational solutions to organizational problems. It reminds senior leadership – the "big picture" people – of the vital need still to mind the store and keep close watch on the "little" things. If you take care of problems while they're small, you don't get a lot of big problems. Program theme: Finding True North.
